

Health & Safety Committee Training for Federal Workplaces

CCOHS Certified Course

Course Description:

The Joint Health and Safety Committee by law; Labour Code Part 2 is mandated to provide recommendation and advice to the employer. Training of the members is very critical for the success for any policy and workplace safety committees. This intensive and popular course provides Health and Safety Committee members with the information needed to prevent workplace injuries and illnesses and also with effective practical techniques and strategies to address workplace safety concerns.

Many committee members have attended the course previously and have found it to be beneficial.

Intended for:

- Committee members representing the employer and employees; Professionals: Others with responsibility for workplace health and safety or the training of supervisors and managers.
- Prerequisite: Prior technical knowledge of health and safety is not a requirement. However, familiarity with workplace processes and practices is helpful.

Instructors

All instructors are approved by CCOHS and have extensive experience and knowledge in safety management systems, organizational behaviour and safety program implementation.

Topics include:

Safety principles and risk management; Legislation; Rights and responsibilities of employers, employees and committees; Hazard recognition and control measures; Fire prevention and emergency preparedness; Hazards and control measures for chemical, physical and biological hazards; Ergonomics — practices to prevent musculoskeletal disorders; Workplace inspection and accident investigation; Committee Duties for Developing and implementing effective workplace programs.

Upon completion of this course committee members will be able to:

Find applicable OH&S legislation; Know your health and safety responsibilities; Determine ways of meeting your OH&S responsibilities; Identify hazards and develop safe work practices; Take leadership in developing and implementing an OH&S program.

Course Fees: $500.00 CAN plus HST per participant. (Due before or at the beginning of the course.)

Presented in cooperation with Quantum synergy (authorized distributor for CCOHS)

Should you have any questions or wish further information on delivering this course in-house:
please contact us: info@safetyscope.net